The way the bag is fastened in PIC.3 & PIC.4 the lid opens back and down. It is fastened the same as above but a different D ring is used.

PIC.5 shows the bag fastened on the passenger seat so the lid opens forward and down. It is fastened in this photo by running the larger strap under the front of the passenger seat and the smaller strap behind the passenger back rest.

There are many different ways to fasten this bag to many different kinds of bikes. The D rings give you extra ways (using bungee cords) to further secure the bag to your bike. These D rings also give you the possibility of fastening other gear to your bag.

PIC.6 shows off the size of this bag when it has been expanded. A full face helmet can fit inside the bag.

If you prefer you can turn this bag into a comfortable back pack that can be safely worn while riding your bike. There are not only the padded shoulder straps; it has an additional strap that goes around your waist/chest to keep it in place. See PIC.7.

Once you get to your destination you can attach a padded shoulder strap to make it that much easier to carry this bag while keeping your hands free. See PIC.8.
